GO TO SHOT AND ESCAPE AT LAKEWOOD. FOR HARRIMAN.

Even 100 to 1 Could Be Found on Sir Christopher in the First Race of the Day.

FAVORITES BOWLED OVER. KERR WINS PRICE CUP.

Some of the Jockeys Ride Poorly, but the Stewards Pay No Heed to Them.

By Francis Trevelyan.

Yesterday was a blue day for the faithful who pinned their faith to favorites at Aqueduct. The series of lamentable events that included the defeat of all six favorites began with the victory of a maiden who at 60 to 1, with 100 to 1 to be found in spots, beat a smart lot of selling platers from post to finish.

This was Sir Christopher, and the way he, though absolutely neglected in the betting, stood those speedy platers on their heads was a beautiful and impressive testimony of the "glorious uncertainty" of the noble game of racing. No other event produced such a wonderful turn-out, but all kinds of hot favorites, including Tyrann, Claes, Kinkikink, Effervescent and Neponset, were bowled over.

In the second race, which was reduced to a two-horse affair, the backers were wrong. Satin Slipper defeating Lady Lindsey with profound ease, though "Jimmy" McLaughlin was most sanguine of his filly's success, and it is said that even M. F. Dwyer, the owner of Satin Slipper, preferred Lady Lindsey.

There was nothing seen that had so dubious a look as the Kitchener race for Thursday, but it must be confessed that the riding of several jockeys would have borne a little looking into on the part of the stewards. It may be a sad and altogether unpleasant reflection that human nature is so prone to fall that such a supposition is not afforded by the stewards on a racecourse is not likely to be overlooked, but the fact remains that such is the case.

The seven-furlong handicap was in every respect the event of the day, though the field was small, only five going to the post. The Oro was the nearest way home, carrying two, and ridden by O'Leary. He was not very strongly favored, presumably because of his lack of display in meeting seasoned horses.

In spite of this he ran an uncommonly good race, although he did not win. Larva, who was a close second, was the actual favorite, Kinkikink, got away well, and Spencer, who was the nearest way home. He set a lively pace, and Don de Oro was the only one of the others that could live with him at all. Larva was the nearest way home, carrying two, and ridden by O'Leary. He was not very strongly favored, presumably because of his lack of display in meeting seasoned horses.

Satin Slipper's maiden race was a slipper event, at five furlongs, for horses that had not won more than two races. Tyrann was a good favorite, though his price receded owing to the fact that he was Ordeal and Belgrave. Boland got away in front with the outsider and quickly getting out in the lead two furlongs after the start. Ordeal made a game, even chase of it, but O'Leary was not at his best in helping him, and though he nearly got up to the end he was beaten by a margin of two lengths.

Satin Slipper jumped away from the post and had a good start, but he was from the full of the flag so that she never was able to get fairly down into the stride. O'Connell, who was the nearest way home, did not obey McLaughlin's instructions to keep at Satin Slipper's girth, but Satin Slipper never gave him a chance and won easily by ten lengths in the last time of 1:14.2.5, close to the track record.

This made McCue's eighth win at the meeting, bringing him to an even score with Spencer and H. Martin. Spencer, however, subsequently scored again on Larva, so that he again went into the lead.

The State Racing Commission issued its annual report yesterday. Nothing of especial interest is embodied therein, but the most roseate view is taken of the existing situation in turf affairs. The Commission promises a full report of the year even accomplished during its stewardship, next year, when its term of office will expire.

ORIOLES WIN THE LAST. Darkens Stops the Game After the Baltimore Had Won an Uphill Victory.

There was a "hot time" at Washington Park last night when the Baltimore had won an uphill victory. The last of a series of four games was contested by the Brooklyn and Baltimore clubs. It was a fierce hand-to-hand fight that lasted three full hours. The McGrawites came out victorious by a run. The final score was Brooklyn 11, Baltimore 12.

Darkness was fast creeping in on the scene of battle when the Baltimore went to bat in the ninth. It was very evident that another full inning could not be played, but McGraw wanted the game called, but the struggle was continued by order of Umpire Gaffney. The visitors, who were down 2-1, but proceeded to fatten their lead. They scored two men before the third out was made. By this time it was too dark for the pitchers to see the plate, and Umpire Gaffney was forced to call the game. The score reverted to the end of the eighth, the Baltimore last two tallies playing no part in the contest officially.

McGraw and his side won because they played the fastest game. The Baltimore were slow compared to the faithful pace the Orioles set. It seemed as though McGraw was all over the field at once, either leading for his rights on decisions or giving the plate and Umpire Gaffney. The excitement was so intense both on the field and in the grandstands that both referees were made more than ordinarily miserable.

RELY TEAMS ARE READY FOR FRAY.

Great Gathering of College Athletes for Games of U. of P. in Philadelphia To-day.

HARVARD IS A FAVORITE.

Records Likely to Go in the 220 Yard Run and the High Hurdle Event.

Philadelphia, April 28.—Thirty-eight colleges and fifty preparatory schools will be represented by field teams at the relay tournament to be held under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field this afternoon.

In the college world this annual affair is now more important even than the intercollegiate championships. This is due to the fact that the element of team work enters so largely in relay events.

The cream of the Eastern college athletes are all entered, and it promises to be a hard day that will keep the Quaker team awake for at least a week. Even the wild and woolly West will have a quietest of feet-footed bookworms from the University of Chicago pitted against the fastest men in Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Georgetown in the one-mile championship relay race. The windy town students are Maloney, Fair, White, Slack and are labelled dangerous.

A feature of the games will be the presence of a "Black Rustie" team. It is many years since the Tigers have been seen competing on the Quakers' own reservation, and it is a significant event, showing that the college world in athletic matters are gradually being returned to the New Jersey and Pennsylvania colleges.

With such a flyer as Tom Burke on the Harvard quartet it is difficult to see any other than the Princeton team as the one-mile championship. Tewkesbury is the fastest on the Quaker team, and Boardman is the fastest on the Princeton team. Both have equaled a record for 220 yards, but it is not believed that they can stay with Burke at the end of a quarter. The rest of the make-up of the Yale, Harvard and Princeton teams is good, and they will probably be on even terms when the three races mentioned above take up the running for the final quarter.

Yale and Pennsylvania are expected to have a merry duel in the two-mile four-man championship. The Quaker list includes Lane, Siebel, Little and Gindler, and they are expected by enthusiastic Philadelphiaans to show the numbers on their backs to the New Haven scholars.

The Yale people, however, incline toward the Yale team, composed of Popper, Scudliffe, Brown and Adams. Yale is also favorite for the four-mile championship. Clyde, Chittenden and Spotted will represent the "Blue" in the event. They have made excellent records at cross-country running, and should
